

we store the velocity observed during the step

We affect the variation

We translate the curve depending on the average speed of the last step

We repeat the process until we reach a stable state

